associations evolved and spread to other genres eventually settling in the popular culture of the early modern period. Contrasted with the elegant images of nature derived from court poetry was the agrarian view of nature based on rural life. The two landscapes began to intersect in the medieval period creating a complex layered web of competing associations. Shirane discusses a wide array of representations of nature and the four seasons in many genres originating in both the urban and rural perspective: textual poetry, chronicles, tales, cultivated gardens, flower arrangement, material, kimonos, screens, performative noh festivals, and gastronomic tea ceremony food rituals. He reveals how this kind of secondary nature, which flourished in Japan's urban architecture and gardens, fostered and idealized a sense of harmony with the natural world just at the moment it was disappearing. Illuminating the deeper meaning behind Japanese aesthetics and artifacts, Shirane clarifies the use of natural images and seasonal topics and the changes in their cultural associations and function across history, genre, and community over more than a millennium. In this fascinating book, the four seasons are revealed to be as much a cultural construction as a reflection of the physical world.
