Off The Grid Re Assembling Domestic Life Innovative Ethnographies:

Off the Grid Phillip Vannini, Jonathan Taggart, 2014-10-30 Off grid isn't a state of mind. It isn't about someone being out of touch about a place that is hard to get to or about a weekend spent offline. Off grid is the property of a building, generally a home, but sometimes even a whole town that is disconnected from the electricity and the natural gas grid. To live off grid therefore means having to radically re-invent domestic life as we know it, and this is what this book is about: individuals and families who have chosen to live in that dramatically innovative but also quite old way of life. This ethnography explores the day-to-day lives of people in each of Canada's provinces and territories living off the grid. Vannini and Taggart demonstrate how a variety of people, all with different environmental constraints, live away from contemporary civilization. The authors also raise important questions about our social future and whether off-grid living creates an environmentally and culturally sustainable lifestyle practice. These homes are experimental labs for our collective future: an intimate look into unusual contemporary domestic lives and a call to the rest of us leading ordinary lives to examine what we take for granted. This book is ideal for courses on the environment and sustainability as well as introduction to sociology and introduction to cultural anthropology courses.

Cutting the Mass Line Andrea E. Pia, 2024-07-02 Explores the growing water supply crisis through an ethnographic study of a rural minority community in China threatened by climate change. China is experiencing climate whiplash: extreme fluctuations between drought and flooding that threaten the health and autonomy of millions of people. Set against mounting anxiety over the future of global water supplies, Cutting the Mass Line explores the enduring political, technical, and ethical project of making water available to human communities and ecosystems in a time of drought, infrastructural disrepair, and environmental breakdown. Anthropologist Andrea E. Pia explores essential questions of how to manage water resources from the vantage point of Huize County, a water-challenged, ecologically damaged, multi-ethnic area in rural Yunnan Province. Drawing on ethnographic fieldwork, archival materials, and statistical data, Pia brings readers inside the inner workings of China's complex water supply ecosystem by exploring the intricate relationships among Chinese water services agencies, water user associations, dam construction sites, party cadres, and rural entrepreneurs, mediators, and farmers, and foreign development planners. The climate crisis and the global politics of sustainability and mitigation offer unanticipated leeway for experimental grassroots intrusions in what has traditionally been the sphere of elite regulatory action: water allocation and distribution. Rural residents' efforts to keep access to local water sources and flourish in their own communities are moving the political possibilities of climate and environmental collective action in exciting and unforeseen directions. As the world grapples with challenges to water quality, supply, and control, the impacts of China's resource management strategies will be a provocative and useful study for the future.

Doing Public Ethnography Phillip Vannini, 2018-07-18 Ethnography and qualitative research methodology in general have witnessed a staggering proliferation of styles and genres over the last three decades. Modes and channels of communication have similarly expanded and diversified Now ethnographers have the opportunity to disseminate their work not only through traditional writing but also through aural visual performative hypertext and many diverse and creative multimodal documentation strategies Yet many ethnographers still feel insufficiently proficient with these new literacies and opportunities for knowledge mobilization and they therefore still limit themselves to traditional modes of communication in spite of their desire for innovation As university based community driven and politically mandated agendas for broader knowledge transfer keep increasing worldwide the demand for public scholarship continues to grow Arguing for the need to disseminate innovative ethnographic knowledge more widely and more effectively this book outlines practical strategies and tools for sharing ethnographic and qualitative research through widely accessible media such as magazines trade books blogs newspapers video radio and social media Drawing from practical experiences and hands on lessons Doing Public Ethnography provides social scientists across all disciplines with concrete tactics for mobilizing knowledge beyond the academic realm

Thinking Like a Climate Hannah Knox, 2020-08-24 Drawing on ethnographic research with policy makers politicians activists scholars and the public in Manchester England Hannah Knox confronts the challenges climate change poses to knowledge production and modern politics

Real Women Run Sandra Faulkner, 2018-01-17 Real Women Run is an innovative feminist ethnography that consists of a series of linked essays and presentations about women who run at the intersections of queer feminist and running identities Faulkner uses feminist grounded theory poetic inquiry and qualitative content analysis to examine women s embodied stories of running how they run how running fits into the context of their lives and relationships how they enact or challenge cultural scripts of women s activities and normative running bodies and what running means for their lives and identities During a two and a half year ethnography with women who run Faulkner engaged in an intersectional qualitative content analysis of websites and blogs targeted to women runners a grounded theory poetic analysis of 41 interviews with women who run and participant observation at road races Real Women Run speaks to the call for a more physical feminism This ethnography sees women s physical and mental strength developed through running as a way to embrace the contradictions between a deconstructed focus on the mind body split and the focus on individuals actual material bodies and their everyday interactions with their bodies and through their bodies with the world around them

Customer Experience Management for Water Utilities Peter Prevos, 2017-10-15 Customer Experience Management for Water Utilities presents a practical framework for water utilities to become more focussed on their customers This framework is founded on Service Dominant Logic a contemporary theory of marketing that explains value creation as a process of co creation between the customer and the service provider Standard models for marketing do not apply to monopolistic water utilities without modification The first two chapters develop a marketing mix tailored to water utilities to assist them with providing customer centric services The water utility marketing mix includes the value proposition internal marketing service quality and customer relationships he book discusses the four dimensions of the marketing mix Chapter three presents a template for developing value propositions to assist water utilities in positioning their service This model is based on the needs and wants of individual customer segments and the type of service Chapter four discusses internal marketing activities designed to improve the way utilities add value for customers This chapter also analyses potential tensions between engineering and science oriented employees and proposes methods to resolve these tensions The final chapters describe customer relationships from both a theoretical and practical perspective The customer experience is a complex phenomenon that is difficult to quantify The book provides a method to measure the experience of the customer based on service quality theory and psychometric statistics Customer Experience Management for Water Utilities is one of the first books that discusses urban water supply from a marketing perspective This perspective provides a unique insight into an industry which is often dominated by technological concerns This book is a valuable resource for Water Utility Managers and Regulators as well as for Marketing Consultants seeking to assist water utilities to become more customer focussed
