Why Should We Conform to Uniform?

People have been debating whether pupils should wear school uniform for years. The time has finally come to resolve the debate and end the wearing of uncomfortable, unfashionable, unflattering school uniform.

Schools argue that wearing a uniform makes pupils equal and brings a sense of community. It is my opinion that forcing students to wear uniforms is taking away the right to freedom of expression. In our teenage years, we should be allowed to experiment with style and fashion as a way of exploring our identity. Why should parents be asked to waste valuable dollars on restrictive clothing that pupils would never choose to wear?

Furthermore, although adults will claim that school uniforms are practical, they are often ill-fitting and non-adjustable for different types of weather. Why should we be made to wear stifling, suffocating clothes on scorching summer days?

Additionally, pupils do not feel their best in these uniforms. In recent research, 65% of pupils who were interviewed reported that they feel uncomfortable with their appearance when wearing school clothes. Undoubtedly, this could be hugely damaging to pupils' self-esteem.

So, let's bring an end to this out-fashioned tradition that strips away our freedom, wastes money and harms our self-esteem.

It's time to throw out these out-dated outfits and bring schools into the modern age.
