Histoires d'enfances et de résilience Sophie Launois, 2013-04-19 J'ai eu le bonheur d'exercer les fonctions de pédiatre dans la maison d'enfants du château de Dino pendant une trentaine d'années. J'y suis arrivée peu après le déménagement de la rue Claude Lorrain Paris et l'installation au château de Dino Montmorency. Sophie Launois et Claudine André faisaient déjà partie de l'équipe d'educatrices. Je les ai donc connues dès ma prise de fonction. Pour moi, c'était la découverte d'une vie institutionnelle imposée des enfants et des adolescents que le maintien dans leur famille mettait en danger. Au début de son ouvrage, Sophie Launois précise comment la protection de l'enfance en danger reposait autrefois sur une prise en charge caritative qui ne se professionnalisa qu'à partir de la deuxième moitié du siècle dernier. Elle nous fait découvrir une institution qui s'efforce de répondre aux besoins fondamentaux d'individus en plein développement qui sont amour, sécurité, stabilité, autant que les enfants placés ont toujours souffert de graves carences dans ces trois domaines. Les contacts que Sophie Launois et Claudine André ont su garder avec de nombreux enfants qu'elles ont eus en charge témoignent de la qualité des liens créés. Ils montrent combien il leur a été possible de devenir des adultes responsables, panouïs dans leur vie de couple et avec leurs enfants qui ne sont pas placés et bien insérés socialement. Sans laisser croire que la souffrance de leur passage a été effacée, la prise en charge qui leur a été offerte a fait office de tuteur de résilience, comme le dit joliment Boris Cyrulnik. Chaque témoignage recueilli et rapporté dans ce livre en est une illustration. Préface de Dominique Girodet extraits Sophie Launois est née le 28 avril 1951 Paris. Elle a suivi la formation d'educateurs spécialisés à l'école de la rue Cassette Paris. Ses spécialités sont la musique, mise en place et direction d'orchestres d'enfants et l'organisation d'ateliers de loisirs créatifs pour enfants et adultes. Dynamiques d'insertion et d'intégration en emploi dans ... Collectif, 2013-09-24T00:00:00-04:00. Le monde du travail a connu des profondes mutations. On observe une tendance des organisations à exiger de leurs salariés une capacité à accélérer le rythme de production, une disponibilité et une flexibilité accrues et des compétences de plus en plus sophistiquées et polyvalentes, ce qui entraîne une augmentation sensible du temps de travail et une intensification des terribles conditions difficiles à soutenir parfois même impossible à maintenir pour de nombreux travailleurs et travailleuses. Pour les jeunes adultes qui doivent se former pour faire face aux exigences élevées et multiples des employeurs, la formation scolaire constitue une étape charnière du cheminement professionnel et les choix de programme d'études ainsi que la façon dont les jeunes adultes anticipent l'exercice de leur métier revêtent une importance stratégique au regard de leurs possibilités d'insertion et d'intégration professionnelles. Ces mutations posent aussi des défis pour ceux et celles dont les cheminements professionnels se trouvent de plus en plus marqués par l'effritement des garanties liées à l'embauche et par la dégradation générale des conditions de travail. Elles posent finalement des défis aux organisations qui prouvent des difficultés à assurer le maintien en emploi d'une main-d'œuvre active et fonctionnelle. Les cheminements professionnels se trouvent ainsi plus contingents et plus individualisés et les conséquences individuelles et collectives de ces transformations sont nombreuses : démotivation scolaire, incision, sentiments d'injustice, manque de reconnaissance de l'activité professionnelle, insatisfaction au travail, pertes identitaires, conflits des valeurs, souffrance au travail, etc. Ces considérations invitent à réfléchir au sens que prennent l'insertion et l'intégration.

socioprofessionnelles et mieux comprendre les processus dynamiques qui contribuent une intégration en emploi qui a du sens Plus précisément elles invitent à s'arrêter aux enjeux que constituent la formation et l'entrée sur le marché du travail des jeunes diplômés dans un contexte de forte compétition et d'exigence élevée de qualification
