Corporate Governance in Contention Ciaran Driver, Grahame Thompson, 2018-06-10 Corporate governance is a complex idea that is often inappropriately simplified as a cookbook of recommended measures to improve financial performance Meta studies of published research show that the supposed benign effects of these measures independent directors or highly incentivised executives are at best context specific There is thus a challenge to explain the meaning purpose and importance of corporate governance This volume addresses these issues The issues discussed centre on relationships within the firm e g between labour managers and investors and relationships outside the firm that affect consumers or the environment The essays in this collection are the considered selection by the editors and the contributors themselves of what are seen as some of the most weighty and urgent issues that connect the corporation and society at large in developed economies with established property rights The essays are to be read in dialogue with each other giving a richer understanding than could be obtained by shepherding all contributions into a single mould Nevertheless taken together they demonstrate a shared sense of deep concern that the corporate governance agenda has been and still is on the wrong track The contributors individually and collectively identify in this compendium both a research programme and a platform for change

Nutrition and Physical Activity Nicole Wolfram, Michael Rigby, Michael Sjöström, Rosa G. Frazzica, Wilhelm Kirch, 2008-09-23 One important reason for the multitude of research activities in this field is because physical inactivity and nutrition are significant risk factors for many common non communicable diseases During the past decades physical inactivity and high dietary fat intakes have become increasingly prevalent in people s daily lives in industrialised countries To prevent and to tackle these major diseases there is a need for a much better understanding of the basic biological and underlying patho physiological processes as well as more relevant baseline data describing food intakes and physical activity habits amongst the general population Being aware of the importance of nutrition and physical activity for health status a multitude of projects with different scopes and methodologies has arisen This variety makes it necessary to bring the results of these activities into a coordinated framework
