

The Importance of Reading Persuasive Essay

Reading is the way people learn, educate and understand themselves. Reading is also a thinking process, which allows the reader to use his knowledge. The principal purpose of reading is to understand the text and using textual indication to find the meaning of new words. Each of us had experience as readers either in school, before school or after school. Below are some memories and experience I had as a reader.

To begin, I do have childhood memories of being read when I was younger. My mum used to read me some stories and sometimes books one chapter a week. Even my brother used to read books when my mother was occupied or when she travelled. I don't really remember those books and stories, but there is one book I remember, and that book is "The Night before Christmas." I always remember this story at every eve of Christmas.

She also used to read the Bible to me and my siblings. Secondly, another memory is when my parents used to stick Alphabets, fruit and vegetables charts on wall of the corridor and asked us to pronounce each alphabet. They sometimes organize competition for the person who will spell the letter of the alphabet off hand and identify the fruits or vegetables they would ask. So, this competition forced us to learn how to read and pronounce letters, because a reward was given at the end to the winner and those who participate.

Again, I also remember my passion for sport especially Soccer and Basketball. I love to be in the sitting home with my father and brother watching football and trying to retain the names of players. I had good feelings about reading, because it exercises my brain, improves my concentration and knowledge. As an effect, it somehow improves my vocabulary and my imagination. It also influenced my language skills since my parents set a few times for us to study.

Furthermore, at my teenage age, I do remember some reading memories and experience either in school or in the house. I remember when my teacher teaches us how to read. She would make groups in our class and each group had his day to read the novel and explain. Each member of the group had a phrase which he would read aloud and explain what he read. She also asked us to read the book in our own, but in class everybody practice.

Again, I remember when my history teacher asked us to have a vocabulary book where we would explain all the vocabulary words in our note books. He usually gives us quizzes on those vocabulary words and their meaning. To continue, when I was a teenage, I started reading to learn and this process was not easy at the beginning but with the help of my elder brother and my teachers, it became easier and easier. My teachers always told me to read what we did during the day after the class at home and read it the day before the class. I still use this method till today. I always read my notes when I was a teenager.

I hardly read novels and books, because I was not too interested by it. Some
