The best performing organisations welcome complaints as a way of engaging consumers. A failure to recognise the importance of complaints leads to insufficient redress for the individual, limits the impact that complaints have in improving services and alienates the public. In some parts of public services there are encouraging signs of increased attention to good complaints handling. However, Government as a whole cannot be said to be complying with best practice in complaints handling or adapting to the needs and expectations of today's citizen. Success depends on the right leadership. The Committee recommends that there should be a minister for government policy on complaints handling. The primary objective of the Cabinet Office review of complaints handling in Government should be to change attitudes and behaviour in public administration at all levels in respect of complaints handling. In respect of complaints from MPs handled by ministers, replies must be accurate, clear and helpful and with no sharing of confidential information or delegation of responsibility for responding. The Government should create a single point of contact for citizens to make complaints about government departments and agencies and the Government should provide leadership to those responsible for various parts of administrative justice to ensure that there is a clear and consistent approach to sharing learning and best practice
