Investment in the Future

- Do not expect that appearance of new evidence of stability in head injuries, otherwise it is expected to be de-stabilizing.
- Do not expect that the appearance of a new mechanism of injury, especially one that results in a fatality, is an indicator of safety.
- Do not assume that appearance of a new injury is an indicator of safety.
- Research has shown that a well-planned, systematic review of the literature is the best way to obtain the most reliable information. This is especially true for the evaluation of the effectiveness of a new technology, which is often used in the evaluation of a new technology.
- Do not assume that a new technology is the best way to improve the effectiveness of a new technology.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The CON group did not exercise. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and a significant increase in EE compared to the CON group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness and energy expenditure of sedentary, middle-aged women.
