G. Grant, Jill M. Gradwell, 2010-07-16 In the case studies that make up the bulk of this book middle and high school history teachers describe the decisions and plans and the problems and possibilities they encountered as they ratcheted up their instruction through the use of big ideas Framing a teaching unit around a question such as Why don't we know anything about Africa offers both teacher and students opportunities to explore historical actors ideas and events in ways both rich and engaging Such an approach exemplifies the construct of ambitious teaching whereby teachers demonstrate their ability to marry their deep knowledge of subject matter students and the school context in ways that fundamentally challenge the claim that history is boring

Foundations of American Education Christian P. Wilkens, 2025-02-01 Answers all the questions that students preparing for a career in education ask Foundations of American Education asks many of the questions new teachers face How should I handle classroom management How will I know if students are learning what they should What should I do in class my first year How can I make things better for students This book addresses major topics covered by introductory level education classes such as the history of US public schools curriculum and assessment classroom management school governance law and more Each chapter includes stories and examples from real teachers and schools and closes with a major US court case about public education A major goal for the volume is to develop a sense for what US public school teachers do now and how we might be able to do better in the years ahead
