

REACTION PAPER IN PSYCHOLOGY

(SHIELA M. FAROL)

From this seminar, I learned that everyman has an instinct. The instinct to survive, to build and to be successful. I know where and when the life's starts. It all starts into the development of sperm cell and egg cell into the ovary. The first development of a baby is the heart and it follows by the brain. Once it is developed it is called people. I learned that we are all belongs to a family, once we developed into the ovary. From this seminar I know that we are born winners, unique and incomparable. The origin of our life is the meeting of sperm cell and egg cell.

I learned how to handle stress in our life. The stress is the human events in environment. People make the situation, the reason why we get stressed not stress make the whole situation. Knowingly the sources of our stress are the time, anticipatory, situational, and encounter. The signs of stress are the following: memory problems, inability to concentrate, moodiness, irritability or short-tempered, agitation, inability to relax, aches and pains, diarrhea or constipation, hair loss, eating more or less, sleeping too much or too little and nervous habits. Stresses lead to depression and depression is the second major illness.

I learned that we have to always think positive in life. We should accept the reality and adopt the situation. And in everything we do, think, love and put God first.

Aviation Psychology Program Research Reports United States. Army Air Forces, 1947 Best Practices for Teaching Beginnings and Endings in the Psychology Major Dana S. Dunn, Bernard B. Beins, Maureen A. McCarthy, G. William Hill, IV, 2010-01-12

Introductory and capstone experiences in the undergraduate psychology program are crucial ways to engage students in their major and psychology department impart realistic expectations and prepare them for life beyond college. Providing the right orientation and capstone courses in psychology education is increasingly a concern of instructors, department chairs, program directors and deans, and both types of courses have become important sources for gathering pre and post coursework assessment data for degree learning outcomes. The strategies presented here have been designed to help educators examine issues around teaching the introductory or careers course and developing a psychology specific orientation program. The authors also provide concrete suggestions for building capstone experiences designed to fit the needs of a department, its pedagogical philosophy, or the educational agenda of the college or university. Undergraduate psychology curriculum designers and instructors can benefit from learning innovative and effective strategies for introducing the major to first year students and at graduation for bringing closure, reinforcing the overall departmental learning outcomes, and helping students apply their disciplinary knowledge in capstone experiences and post graduate life. In this collection of articles, psychology instructors involved in the improvement of teaching and learning review the research and share their own successes and challenges in the classroom. Discussions include effective practices for helping students become acclimated to and engaged in the psychology major, application of developmental knowledge and learning communities to course design, and use of quality benchmarks to improve introductory and capstone courses. Other chapters describe innovations in the design of stand alone courses and offer concrete advice on counseling psychology graduates about how to use what they have learned beyond their higher education experiences.
