Question 1

There are times when resettling in cities, leaving villages for better jobs. Living in the city is very expensive; people who migrate from villages are often not able to provide education to their children. Due to malnutrition and living in unhygienic surroundings, they often suffer from ill health and disease, but cannot afford to go to the hospital. Medical treatment is often beyond their means. Children who are all by themselves the entire day sometimes get into bad company. This causes great distress to the elders in the family. The elders are torn between earning for the family and looking after the children. Sometimes older members of the family or the very young are left behind in the village, and the family is scattered. Often there are changes in the size and structures of families. A newborn adds joy to the family, whereas the demise of a family member saddens everyone. A bride moves away from her parental home into her matrimonial home and thus becomes a part of a new family. Some of you might have friends who must shift to other places all the time as their parents get 'transferred' because of their work requirements. Many of our soldiers, people in the army, navy and air force, have regular transfers. They must regularly move from one place to another. It affects family dynamics sometimes. A transfer can happen because of a job promotion, which means that the person will get a higher salary and other benefits. Of course, there may be times when a family is transferred to a place that is not as good as the previous place. One just must try and make the best of what one has!

Question 2

Mammals can be one of the hardest-hit groups by habitat loss, and a lot of research has been carried out to find the best ways to conserve mammal diversity. Much of this research has focussed on very large-scale changes in land use and the impacts this will have on overall mammal diversity. However, many important decisions about land use are made at much more local scales, for example at the level of individual landowners. Now, in a detailed study led by Imperial College London that looked at mammal diversity across different small-scale landscapes in Borneo, researchers have identified previously logged forests as an overlooked source of refuge for mammals. These 'selectively logged' forests, where only certain tree species are removed, are often considered to be degraded and are frequently cleared to make way for plantations. The new results, published in the journal Ecological Applications, suggest they should be better protected. The team recorded mammals using trap-and-release techniques and motion-sensing cameras over three years, creating an unprecedented 20,000 records of species in three land-use types: old-growth forest, logged forest and oil palm
