Discussing the future of research in public administration (PA) is more than just listing topics for research which are inspired by possible future challenges for the public sector. Even if national contexts determine a strong path dependency for research agendas, there are four major trends which affect the future of PA research: Europeanisation, reform agendas, globalisation issues, and marketisation of research. A crucial element in the debate is to know what the specific European voice is and should be in PA research. For this purpose it is necessary to explicitly organise research in PA.

Keywords: future of research, Europe, organise research in public administration

INTRODUCTION

Research in the field of public administration is subject to a range of influences and dynamics, with a past, a present, and a future. Looking at the main influences and dynamics, it is important to see how the future of researching public administration could look like, and perhaps should look like. The difference between “should” and “could” depends on these influences and dynamics, e.g. our debates and academic agenda setting, but also resources in money and people, hazard (such as a sudden crisis of governance of the banking sector), or perhaps on serendipity (like the use of cultural theory from anthropologists).

It is useful to focus on some aspects of this future, also from the point of view of how to shape the research in public administration in the next decades. This is a
