Airfields Of 8th Roger Freeman,1978-02-28 A unique nostalgic look at the airfields used by the Eighth in the United Kingdom during the Second World War Conceived in war the airfields experienced their moments of glory and when the war ended were left empty and derelict to die The few which remain virtually intact have only survived because some private or public concern has formed a practical use for them although not always as airfields Some of the more remote airfields still dot the countryside the same as when the last plane left their runways and the last truck departed through the main gate They are bleak windswept and moldering but they retain the atmosphere of the fine high endeavors of the people who inhabited them and the aura of ineffable sadness that hangs over memorials to fighting men For such they are Liberator Bomber Eugene Thomas Winn,2004 United States Army Air Corps Lieutenant Eugene T Winn wrote home to his father regularly from before his enlistment in May 1942 until his discharge in September 1945 This correspondence is the core of the book Documents and photographs give a definitive sense of place and immediacy to the story And in the telling the reader can learn much of war and its lasting effects on persons family community It is a compelling story laced with suspense and drama Lt Winn did not want to be in the Army and like many young men of his day saw aviation as preferable The airplane was going to revolutionize war making Eugene wanted to be part of that revolution And so he was in a four engine bomber a B 24 Liberator stationed in Bugay England In early June 1944 Winn s wife was notified that her husband was missing in action Frantic attempts to find out what had happened on 25 May 1944 had to wait the liberation of Paris for answers No fairy tale this still a happy ending but with scars and lessons for a lifetime The story indeed is compelling more compelling than any fairy tale might ever be P-51B Mustang James William "Bill" Marshall,Lowell F. Ford,2020-07-09 The story of the P 51B Mustang aircraft from its development prior to the American entry into the war through to D Day in June 1944 During World War II the United States Army Air Corps was led by a cadre of officers who believed implicitly that military aviation particularly fast heavy bombers at high altitude would be able to destroy strategic enemy targets during daylight with minimal losses However by 1942 the Flying Fortress was proving vulnerable to Luftwaffe fighters This title charts the United States Army Air Force's struggle to develop a Long Range Escort which would enable them to achieve the Combined Bomber Objectives and gain mastery of the skies over the Third Reich. The commitment of the USAAF to the Mediterranean and European theatres saw an increasingly desperate need to find a fighter escort which reached crisis point in 1943 as losses suffered in the Tidal Wave offensive and Schweinfurt Regensburg Munster raids emphasised the mounting strength of the Luftwaffe. The USAAF leaders increasingly accepted the probability of bomber losses and the deployment of the P 51B Mustang solved the problem of Germany's layered defence strategy as Luftwaffe fighters had been avoiding the P 47 Thunderbolt and P 38 Lightning escort fighters by concentrating their attacks beyond the range of the Thunderbolt and Lightning. The P 51B duly emerged as the The Bastard Stepchild that the USAAF Material Division did not want becoming the key Long Range Escort fighter alongside the P 38 and P 47 that defeated the Luftwaffe prior to D Day. As well as the P 51B's history this title explores the technical improvements made to each of these fighters as well as the operational leadership and technical development of the Luftwaffe they fought against.

Engineering a Successful Life Lewis Hong Chow, 2005. This is an incredible biography of a Canadian born aeronautical engineer who has worked at every major aircraft company and the National Research Council in Canada for the past 50 years. It includes helping Jacqueline Cochran break the sound barrier and establish a number of world airspeed records in 1953. General Chuck Yeager her good friend helped her in the air and Lewis helped her on the ground by providing her with a Canadian F 86 Sabre 3 powered with a special Orenda engine for her record attempts. Of interest to all Canadians is that the production version of the Canadian F 86 Sabre 3 became the best jet fighter in the world in the 1950s and 1960s. The author's last aeronautical career move was joining Pratt Whitney Canada where he played a key role as the company became the world leader in design and development of small turbine engines. He accomplished this by successfully negotiating with the Federal Government for hundreds of millions of dollars in repayable loans to design and develop new jet engines. The biography also includes Lewis' remarkable humanitarian work. It started with his joining a local Lions Club in 1961 and it progressed to building two new hospitals in Montreal for the Chinese community. In his retirement in Ottawa since 1989 he has been with the University of Ottawa Heart Institute initially to assist with the design of a new artificial heart and then later to negotiate with provincial and federal governments for financial assistance to develop the artificial heart.

Mustang Designer Ray Wagner, 2014-12-02. Mustang Designer tells the story of American wartime fighter development including engines and armaments as part of a nationwide program of aircraft builders and fliers focusing on Edgar Schmued the designer of the Mustang. The P 51 Mustang is widely regarded as the best propeller driven fighter that ever flew. What many might not realize is that the plane's developer was a German migrant. This book tells of how Schmued created a weapon that would ultimately prove lethal to the aspirations of those who had seized control over his native land.
