The Lion and the Mouse

Awake from his nap, the lion laid his paws over his eyes on the tiny creature, ready to pounce for his "game." "You're not" began the poor mouse. "Please let me go, and someday, I will surely repay you!" The lion was amused to think that a mouse could ever help. He was generous and finally let the mouse go.

Some days later, while walking to prey in the forest, the lion was caught in a hunter's net. Unable to free himself, he called the forest with his angry roars. The mouse from the forest was quickly found the lion struggling in his net.

Running to one of the great trees that towered him, the mouse climbed it with a jerk, and soon the lion was free. "You laughed when I said I would repay you," said the mouse. "Now you see that even a mouse can help a lion."

The Tortoise and the Hare

Once, there was a strong, young hare who bragged about how fast he could run. He had just had a victory (he thinking he was the best runner in the world, he ran when he was little. He ran so he grew older, but every time he ran, he bragged about himself to the other animals. He especially bragged to the tortoise because he ran so superior to such a slow creature. Tired of hearing him boast, the slow tortoise challenged the hare to a race. The hare agreed at once, thinking that he would beat the tortoise easily. All of the animals gathered already at the finish line to watch the race.

As soon as the race started, the hare dashed ahead. He ran down the road fast, without stopping, confidently decided to give the hare a rest. "How do you expect to win this race when you are walking along at such a slow pace?" he said proudly to the tortoise.

The hare stretched himself and loudly said to a fox and his cat, thinking, "There is nothing of race to make, talk, and arguments. That tortoise will never beat me!" The tortoise walked slowly past the hare. He walked and walked. He persevered until he got to the end of the race.

The animals cheered as they saw the tortoise reach the finish line. "Tortoise, you are the winner!" they cheered. The hare found the cheering and noise with a start. He started to turn as a rabbit toward the finishing line, but it was too late. The tortoise had already crossed the line. "It's not fair," complained the hare. "I was winning. We have to do the race again." But this time, no one listened to the hare. After that, the hare always bragged himself. "Don't show off about your speedy pace. Slow and steady won the race!"

Keep trying, even when things seem hard.
