

Unit 1: Solutions

Each level activity will take you more than 30 minutes to complete.

- 1. Student Inquiry—You will explore various aspects of solution chemistry by developing models and analyzing an independent investigation experiment. You will use mathematics to help you analyze the results.
- 2. CE Task—You will use mathematics to analyze solubility, concentration, mass percent and density and CE task questions that are uniquely and purposefully written.
- 3. 2-1-1 Summary Table—You will graph solubility for two solvents.

Introduction

Imagine that you are a food scientist who is asked to plan the manufacturing process for various macromolecular mixtures. These mixtures will contain the sugar by adding the dissolved sugar from glucose to 200 mL of water and then heating the mixture to a boil.

The mixtures will then require that you add ingredients that composition will include:

	Ingredient	Formula	Mass per 100 mL water
1	Sugar Salt	NaCl	15.00 g
2	Sugar Syrup	$\text{C}_{12}\text{H}_{22}\text{O}_{11}$	22.00 g
3	Water	H_2O	100.00 g
4	Any macromolecule		0.00–100 g

The manufacturing process will be done separately of several solutions under your control. You must know that is the amount you use the ingredients, the appropriate quantity of each ingredient and the conditions (such as temperature and mass) for each step of the process. Your solution should be heated until properties of sugar dependent on pH and other things for the sugar.

Concentrations and Analysis

Each Student log the manufacturing process.

Below are the steps to find the effect of composition on solubility the high-sugar and macromolecular sugar. You will need to measure solubility, dependent on graph form to complete the following tasks. You will give findings about the process.

Key concepts terms: mass composition, solubility composition, saturated solution, molality composition, density, mass solubility versus temperature, solubility of NaCl solubility of $\text{C}_{12}\text{H}_{22}\text{O}_{11}$.
