

Captain Cook's Landing at Botany Bay

Account of Captain James Cook

Sunday 19th April 1770

Almost a week had passed since Lieutenant Hicks shouted 'land ahoy' and furnished our discovery of the east coast of New Holland.

Since then, we have sailed the Endeavour steadily northwards, keeping land in sight all the while. We have been kept busy mapping the coastline of this new and mysterious land.

On the morning of Sunday 19th April, we reached a place of great interest. It was a wide but shallow inlet, the immediately dropped anchor off a low headland covered with sand dunes. The great number of shipwrecks caught that morning prompted me to rather uncreatively name this place 'Shipwreck Harbour'.

Around lunchtime we lifted anchor and sailed the Endeavour into the inlet. On either headland, we saw natives.

Soon after we dropped anchor again, a number of fellow sailors and myself set out in a rowboat to investigate. As we drifted toward the shore I said to sailor Isaac Smith, 'Jump out, Isaac,' thus making him the first European to set foot on the jilted east coast of New Holland. We all went followed and waded through the shallow, warm water to the shore.

We all went followed and waded through the shallow, warm water to the shore.

After they had waded across shore from a group of us in a boat and the first one looking about, they saw an old man, the other a younger fellow. We asked them why they could not accept them. Perhaps they had misunderstood what we had said. Doubtless, one of my men then went up.

Cook's Landing Botany Bay

A week, including the night, they did not even look at a number of other men they spent at us - all looking friendly. I am quite sure over their heads and shoulders.

Of course, we found only a small number of shells to communicate with the group, and returned to our boat.

It is a wonderful day. The next day the weather permitted our explorations up the east coast of the ship. We are now going!
