

Autobiography

My name is Michael Smith and I was born on the 30th of August, 19XX in Long Beach, California. My parents were Eddie Smith and Joan Smith. Both of my parents are deceased. My mom died at the age of 57 in 19XX from lung cancer which was the result of smoking her whole lifetime. My father died at the age of 69 in 20XX from a massive heart attack, which was also the likely result from a lifetime of smoking. Fortunately, I have been smart enough to avoid that bad habit.

My early childhood was a typical middle-class environment circa the 19XX's. My dad worked for Simpson Buick as a parts salesman and my mom was a stay-at-home mother. I had a happy, normal childhood as an only child, leaving me somewhat spoiled. My mom and dad divorced when I was eight years old and both remarried within a year or so of the divorce. My dad remained married to my stepmom Bev until his death. My mom would marry two more times. My first stepdad Vince became a big part of my life and I maintained close contact with him until his death in 2006, two days after my real dad died. Yes, that was a very bad week, losing both of my dads.

Growing up with split parents was not especially difficult since each of my parents kept me out of their divorce and they got along fine at events where both of them were present. I lived with my mom until I was 16 and in high school. By my sophomore year in high school I had begun to hang around with friends that got me into a lot of trouble with a number of things including smoking pot and drinking. I was rapidly heading down a

Writing That Breaks Stones Joya Uraizee, 2020-10-01 Writing That Breaks Stones African Child Soldier Narratives is a critical examination of six memoirs and six novels written by and about young adults from Africa who were once child soldiers It analyzes not only how such narratives document the human rights violations experienced by these former child soldiers but also how they connect and disconnect from their readers in the global public sphere It draws on existing literary scholarship about novels and memoirs as well as on the fieldwork conducted by social scientists about African children in combat situations Writing That Breaks Stones groups the twelve narratives into categories and analyzes each segment comparing individually written memoirs with those written collaboratively and novels whose narratives are fragmented with those that depict surreal landscapes of misery It concludes that the memoirs focus on a lone individual's struggles in a hostile environment and use repetition logical contradictions narrative breaks and reversals of binaries in order to tell their stories By contrast the novels use narrative ambiguity circularity fragmentation and notions of dystopia in ways that call attention to the child soldiers communities and environments All twelve narratives depict the child soldier's agency and culpability somewhat ambiguously effectively reflecting the ethical dilemmas of African children in combat

Theoretical Perspectives on Autobiographical Memory M.A. Conway, David C. Rubin, Hans Spinnler, Willem A. Wagenaar, 2013-04-17 The meeting Theoretical Perspectives on Autobiographical Memory was held at the Grange Hotel Grange over Sands in the Lake District region of North Western England July 1991 The workshop was financed by a generous grant from the NATO Scientific Affairs Division under the Advanced Research Workshop programme and without this funding the meeting would not have been possible the organisers and delegates gratefully acknowledge the support of the NATO Advanced Research Workshops programme Thirty five scientists from five different NATO countries attended the workshop and twenty seven delegates presented papers The two aims of the workshop were to bring together in one forum a number of comparatively separate approaches to autobiographical memory and to promote theory in the area generally These aims were fulfilled in the presentations and discussions particularly the final discussion session in which delegates focussed on the central issues of the nature structure and functions of autobiographical memory and how these emerge in different research areas The present volume contains the papers arising from the workshop We thank Mrs Sheila Whalley for secretarial help and Fiona Hirst and Stephen Anderson for practical assistance in coordinating registration for the workshop
