AIR INDUCTION SYSTEM - DESCRIPTION AND OPERATION

Introduction

The T400 air induction system is a forced induction system consisting of an air induction pump (1) a compressor (2) which is connected to the air filter housing (3). The air filter housing contains an oil at the bottom and an inlet at the bottom. An air filter separator (4) separates air from moisture through the air filter. The air filter separator has a drain where the turbosupercharger and engine cooling passage is connected. The air filter housing is mounted to a metal frame that extends from the intake manifold to the rear engine cover assembly (5).

Once air is forced through the air filter, the mass air is drawn out of the air filter housing to the compressor side of the engine turbosupercharger (2) through the turbosupercharger intake tube (6).

The turbosupercharger (2) compresses the air and sends the air through the air to the cooler (7). The air to the cooler lowers the temperature of the air. This provides the mass manifold (17) with a denser cooler air supply that provides better combustion in the engine cylinders.
