The Civil Rights Movement

The Civil Rights Movement is known as a period of time in the 1950s and 1960s that really began about 100 years earlier, after the American Civil War. The Civil Rights Movement occurred because of the desire for racial equality after the end of slavery in America.

After the Civil War, the American South was a very racist place. There were many segregation laws, which meant people were kept separate. There were segregation laws for schools and public places, as well as laws that kept people from getting married if they were of different races.

One of the first Black children to desegregate schools in the South was Ruby Bridges. She was the only Black child to go to an all-white elementary school in New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1960.

Ruby's father, a Black man, was a member of the NAACP, a group that fought for the rights of African Americans. He was a very important person in the Civil Rights Movement.

Ruby Bridges

MOVIE STUDY GUIDE

When a single day of school and the world had to learn what her parents meant and the opportunity to achieve. She graduated from a desegregated high school, became a model agent, and built a family of her own.

As an adult, Ruby continued to be a role model. She moved forward and took on challenges that desegregation was still a challenge because in 1960 she established
