Study of the structure and function of the human body

Anatomy

The scientific study of the structure of the human body

Physiology

The scientific study of the function of the human body

Structural levels

Also known as the levels of organization of the human body

- 1. Chemical level - study of the chemical composition of the body
- 2. Cellular level - study of the structure and function of cells
- 3. Tissue level - study of the structure and function of tissues
- 4. Organ level - study of the structure and function of organs
- 5. System level - study of the structure and function of body systems
- 6. Organism level - study of the structure and function of the whole body

CELLS AND TISSUES

Cells are the basic units of structure and function of the body

Characteristics of living organisms

1. Organization - the body is organized into levels of complexity

2. Metabolism - the body uses energy to maintain its structure and function

3. Growth and development - the body grows and changes over time

4. Response - the body responds to its environment

5. Reproduction - the body produces new cells

6. Homeostasis - the body maintains a stable internal environment

The body is organized into levels of complexity, from the chemical level to the organism level. Each level has its own structure and function, and they all work together to maintain the body's overall health and function.

Cells are the basic units of structure and function of the body. They are organized into tissues, which are groups of cells that work together to perform a specific function.

Tissues are organized into organs, which are groups of tissues that work together to perform a specific function.

Organs are organized into body systems, which are groups of organs that work together to perform a specific function.

The body systems work together to maintain the body's overall health and function.

ORGANS

Organs are groups of tissues that work together to perform a specific function

1. Heart - pumps blood throughout the body

2. Lungs - exchange oxygen and carbon dioxide

3. Stomach - digests food

4. Liver - processes nutrients and toxins

5. Kidneys - filter waste from the blood

6. Pancreas - produces insulin and digestive enzymes

7. Spleen - filters blood and stores red blood cells

8. Thymus - produces T-cells for the immune system

9. Hypothalamus - controls body temperature and hunger

10. Pituitary - releases hormones that control other organs

Organ systems

Groups of organs that work together to perform a specific function

RESPIRATORY SYSTEM

Functions

- 1. Intake of oxygen - the respiratory system takes in oxygen from the air
- 2. Exchange of gases - oxygen is exchanged for carbon dioxide in the lungs
- 3. Transport of oxygen - oxygen is transported to the rest of the body by the blood
- 4. Removal of carbon dioxide - carbon dioxide is removed from the body by the blood
- 5. Regulation of pH - the respiratory system helps to regulate the pH of the blood

Structure

The respiratory system is composed of the trachea, bronchi, and lungs

The trachea is the windpipe, which carries air into and out of the lungs

The bronchi are the main airways that branch out from the trachea

The lungs are the organs where gas exchange takes place

The diaphragm is a muscle that contracts and relaxes to move air in and out of the lungs

The pleural cavity is the space between the lungs and the chest wall

NERVOUS SYSTEM

The nervous system is responsible for controlling and coordinating the body's activities

Parts of the nervous system

1. Brain - the control center of the nervous system

2. Spinal cord - carries messages between the brain and the rest of the body

3. Nerves - carry messages between the brain, spinal cord, and the rest of the body

4. Receptors - detect changes in the environment and send messages to the brain

5. Effectors - carry out the instructions from the brain

6. Reflexes - automatic responses to stimuli

7. Synapses - the point where two neurons meet and pass messages

8. Neurotransmitters - chemicals that carry messages between neurons

9. Action potentials - electrical impulses that travel along neurons

10. Resting potential - the electrical charge of a neuron when it is not firing

11. Threshold potential - the level of electrical charge that must be reached for an action potential to occur

12. All-or-none principle - once an action potential is triggered, it travels the entire length of the neuron

13. Refractory period - the time after an action potential when a neuron cannot fire again

14. Myelin sheath - a fatty layer that surrounds neurons and speeds up the transmission of messages

15. Axons - the long fibers of a neuron that carry messages away from the cell body

16. Dendrites - the short fibers of a neuron that receive messages from other neurons

17. Soma - the cell body of a neuron where the nucleus is located

INTERNAL ORGANS OF THE BODY

The internal organs of the body are responsible for maintaining the body's internal environment

1. Heart - pumps blood throughout the body

2. Lungs - exchange oxygen and carbon dioxide

3. Stomach - digests food

4. Liver - processes nutrients and toxins

5. Kidneys - filter waste from the blood

6. Pancreas - produces insulin and digestive enzymes

7. Spleen - filters blood and stores red blood cells

8. Thymus - produces T-cells for the immune system

9. Hypothalamus - controls body temperature and hunger

10. Pituitary - releases hormones that control other organs

The internal organs of the body are responsible for maintaining the body's internal environment. They work together to regulate the body's temperature, pH, and fluid balance, and to provide the body with the energy and nutrients it needs to function.

The heart is the central organ of the circulatory system, which pumps blood throughout the body. The lungs are the organs where gas exchange takes place, and the stomach is the organ where food is digested.

The liver is the largest internal organ and is responsible for processing nutrients and toxins. The kidneys are the organs that filter waste from the blood, and the pancreas is the organ that produces insulin and digestive enzymes.

The spleen is an organ that filters blood and stores red blood cells. The thymus is an organ that produces T-cells for the immune system. The hypothalamus is the part of the brain that controls body temperature and hunger, and the pituitary is a small gland that releases hormones that control other organs.

The internal organs of the body are all interconnected and work together to maintain the body's overall health and function. Any one of them can have a significant impact on the body's ability to function properly.

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

- 1. Control of growth and development
- 2. Regulation of metabolism
- 3. Regulation of fluid balance
- 4. Regulation of blood pressure
- 5. Regulation of body temperature
- 6. Regulation of the immune system
- 7. Regulation of the reproductive system
- 8. Regulation of the digestive system
- 9. Regulation of the respiratory system
- 10. Regulation of the circulatory system

Major glands and hormones

- 1. Hypothalamus - releases hormones that control the pituitary gland
- 2. Pituitary - releases hormones that control the thyroid gland, the adrenal glands, and the reproductive glands
- 3. Thyroid - releases thyroid hormone, which controls metabolism
- 4. Adrenal - releases adrenaline and cortisol, which control the body's response to stress
- 5. Pancreas - releases insulin and glucagon, which control blood sugar levels
- 6. Pineal - releases melatonin, which controls the body's sleep-wake cycle
- 7. Ovaries - release estrogen and progesterone, which control the female reproductive system
- 8. Testes - release testosterone, which controls the male reproductive system
- 9. Thyroid - releases thyroid hormone, which controls metabolism
- 10. Adrenal - releases adrenaline and cortisol, which control the body's response to stress

Endocrine system and homeostasis

The endocrine system is responsible for maintaining the body's internal environment. It works together with the nervous system to regulate the body's temperature, pH, and fluid balance, and to provide the body with the energy and nutrients it needs to function.
