Cyber Conflicts and Small States Lech J. Janczewski, William Caelli, 2016-09-17 The probability of a world wide cyber conflict is small Yet the probability of forms of cyber conflict regional or even global could be argued as being very high Small countries are usually signatories to military and economic alliances with major world powers but rely heavily on the technical ability of these powers in protecting their own national interests They may be considered to be IT technology colonies Their cyber infrastructure is usually fully imported and their ability to assess it is limited This book poses the question to what extent should or can a small country prepare itself for handling the broad range of cyber threats Looking at cyber warfare cyber terrorism cyber crime and associated concerns national experts from New Zealand Australia The

Netherlands and Poland present analyses of cyber defence realities priorities and options for smaller countries They show that what is needed is the ability of small nations to be able to define and prepare appropriate responses such as the role of military law enforcement business entities continuity and resilience strategies incident response and business continuity plans and more for handling nationally aimed cyber attacks particularly where these address national critical infrastructures
