Boys, Bodies, and Physical Education Göran Gerdin, 2017-01-12 Using visual ethnography this book explores the many forms of pleasures that boys derive in and through the spaces and their bodies in physical education Employing the works of Michel Foucault and Judith Butler Gerdin examines how pleasure is connected to identity schooling and power relations and demonstrates how discourses of sport fitness health and masculinity work together to produce a variety of pleasurable experiences At the same time the book provides a critique of such pleasurable experiences within physical education by illustrating how these pleasures can still for some boys quickly turn into displeasures and can be associated with exclusion humiliation bullying and homophobia Boys Bodies and Physical Education argues that pleasure can both be seen as an educational and productive practice in physical education but also a constraint that both engenders and privileges some boys over others as well as reproducing narrow and limited conceptions of masculinity and pleasures for all boys This book works to problematize these pleasures and their articulations with gender bodies and spaces

DeMulder, Pamela C. LePage, Diane R. Wood, 2001-09-30 Teacher professional development requires a dynamic vision of education The authors argue that teaching and teacher education are moral rather than technical or instrumental endeavors and describe a highly innovative master's program for practicing teachers founded in 1992 By describing important aspects of the program the authors demonstrate that a moral vision can be enacted in practice despite many constraints and challenges They also show that any serious attempt to change practice will of course be unwieldy contentious and subject to sudden shocks and reversals as well as successes The work also provides a compelling and detailed account of the institutional and political conditions in higher education that militate against innovations in teacher education and professional development Authors of the chapters include the former director of the innovation the faculty who were involved in teaching and administering the program and teachers who studied with them Each chapter examines the practices pedagogically ideologically morally and professionally through the perspectives of people intimately involved with the program
