similar to a production line used in the motor car industry which has led to improved productivity with fewer man hours and less workspace and spares holdings The MoD has also entered into new partnerships with industry which are managed by teams made up of contractors and military personnel situated at main RAF bases The new arrangements are based on industry making available a specified number of aircraft or engines rather than on the number of repairs they carry out or the number of spare parts they provide The report identifies two significant risks that still remain relating to the provision of sufficient trained personnel to man the pulse lines for both jets and the supply chain to ensure the timely supply of spare parts for both types of aircraft

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2012-05-18 Around half of all children in the UK from separated families are being brought up in poverty In 2010 11 the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission collected and transferred 1.1 billion to parents caring for more than 880 000 children Nevertheless significant all too familiar and recurring challenges remain parents are frustrated with the standard of support received from the Commission Maintenance payments totalling some 3.7 billion are outstanding but the Commission estimates that only 1 billion of this is collectable and costs remain high The Commission also faces further significant challenges in introducing its new child maintenance scheme In particular it will need to respond to substantial cost reductions and successfully implement a new system of charging fees to parents who choose to use the Commission's services The Commission needs to deliver acceptable standards of service at a reasonable cost The new child maintenance scheme should improve efficiency but further changes are needed to streamline existing processes The Commission has to deliver cost reductions of 117 million by 2014 15 and its plans are currently 16 million short of this target Its cost reduction plans depend in part on a new IT system which is already late To meet the current timetable critical testing will have to be undertaken in parallel with development work mirroring poor practices that have contributed to the failure of a number of government IT projects Each month of delay will increase the Commission's costs by at least 3 million and may delay planned income from fees
