

Reflective Essay

(Originally written for high school teachers and students.)

The reflective essay was given definition by the essays of Michel Eyquem de Montaigne. In choosing to call his pieces "essays," literally "trials," Montaigne focused on writing as exploration and discovery, not writing as final thoughts on established truths. Perhaps this kind of writing as a recognized genre could have emerged into Western culture only after the decline of medieval scholasticism and the reliance on external authority. Writers could explore their own ideas, their own lives, finding new authority within private insight and experience.

Essay writers have charmed and challenged thoughtful readers from Montaigne's time on: Addison and Steele, Lamb, Hazlitt, Virginia Woolf, E. B. White, Joan Didion, and Russell Baker are among those whose essays accurately reflect the tastes and views on world events and issues of their times. Today, reflective essays range from the philosophical treatises of renowned thinkers to the thoughtful, even timely, humorous and trivial probings and musings of local newspaper and magazine columnists. Students will find in the essays of our day a mirror for our time.

Importance of the Reflective Essay

The writing of a successful reflective essay requires the ability to see connections. Moving from a personal experience or a general concept, the writer must explore possibilities, try out ideas, and reach beyond personal implications to a larger, more general significance.

Seeing connections is a central component of problem solving, one of the critical aspects of thinking. In reflection, writers are challenged to abandon trite ideas that they cannot validate against their own experiences. Reflection leads beyond such superficial understanding as "We will all die sometime"; beyond wishful understandings, "I hope everyone will want peace"; and beyond moralistic imprints, "We should be kind to one another." It asks for understandings that delve into and explore what we have in common—the universal truth of what it means to be human beings.

With its focus on the writer's search for a meaning applicable to the human condition, the reflective essay is a close kin to other kinds of writing. Autobiography narrates a meaningful personal experience; the reflective essay uses this experience to talk about life in general. Speculation about causes and effects, conjectures about the "whys" and "what-ifs"—the reflective essay uses these speculations as a prod for explorations. Interpretation looks for meaning; the reflective essay uses these meanings to reach understanding.

Evaluation proclaims a judgment; the reflective essay explores the ramifications of judgments. Using so many different types of writing and thinking, the reflective essay emerges as a rich, challenging type of writing.
