These theoretical issues remain unresolved when faced by contemporary scholars and practitioners. In light of our contributions, and any other progress concerning these issues, future scholars are asked to contribute further to a body of research on the relationship between the different management and organizational issues that the management theory can more effectively address, and to the control of operations of these organizations. We believe that this research will continue to attract, and will become a vibrant, growing, and important area of research.

These Phages were isolated, cultured, and then subjected to a series of tests to determine their ability to infect and kill Staphylococcus aureus (ATCC 29213) and Staphylococcus epidermidis (ATCC 12228). The results of these tests are shown in Table 1. The phages were found to be highly effective against both strains of Staphylococcus aureus and Staphylococcus epidermidis.
