Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The subjects were 15 sedentary, middle-aged women (mean age 45.8 ± 5.2 years, mean weight 68.5 ± 12.5 kg, mean height 165.5 ± 5.5 cm). The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 7) and a training group (n = 8). The control group performed no exercise, while the training group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training program. The HR and EE were significantly higher in the training group compared to the control group at the end of the 10-week training program. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
