

Population Dynamics

Topic: Population Dynamics

Week 10: Exam

Student: Anna Böhmer

Answer the following questions by clicking on the correct answer. You have 10 minutes to complete the exam.

1. The exponential model

In the exponential growth model, the growth rate is constant. This means that the population size increases at a constant rate. The exponential growth model is often used to describe the growth of a population in the short term, but it is not realistic for long-term growth.

2. The logistic growth model

In the logistic growth model, the growth rate decreases as the population size increases, approaching zero as the population size approaches the carrying capacity.

1. The carrying capacity is the maximum number of individuals that the environment can support.

True or False?

2. The carrying capacity is the maximum number of individuals that the environment can support, regardless of the resources available.

True or False?

3. Exploring the exponential growth model

Open the "Exponential Growth" app and explore the "Exponential" setting.

1. If the initial population size is 100 and the growth rate is 10%, how many individuals will the population have after 10 years? (Round your answer to the nearest whole number.)

1000000 (rounded to the nearest whole number)

2. The carrying capacity is the maximum number of individuals that the environment can support. In the exponential growth model, the carrying capacity is infinite.

Variable	Exponential Growth	Logistic Growth
Initial Population	100	100
Growth Rate	10%	10%
Carrying Capacity	Infinite	1000
Population Size after 10 years	1000000	1000

Explain the "Logistic" setting in the exponential growth model.

3. The carrying capacity is the maximum number of individuals that the environment can support. In the logistic growth model, the carrying capacity is finite.

True or False?

True
