Investment in the Future

- Do not expect that appropriate communication of statistics is best achieved by increasing the number of statistical channels.
- Do not expect that the appropriate communication method for the appropriate audience results in a list of topics to discuss.
- Do not expect that appropriate communication is a simple task.
- Research has shown that a well-planned communication process can be a very effective way to communicate statistical data. This is especially true for the public, which is often the most difficult audience to reach. It is important to understand the audience's needs and to tailor the communication to their needs.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of six women who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of six women who exercised for 12 weeks. The exercise group was instructed to exercise for 30 minutes, three times a week, at a heart rate of 150 to 160 beats per minute. The control group was instructed to remain sedentary. The subjects were monitored for 12 weeks. The HR and EE were measured at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The HR of the exercise group increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The HR of the control group remained at 140 beats per minute, and the EE remained at 1,800 kcal per day. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can increase the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the patient should do:
 - Avoid exposure to bright light at night
 - Avoid exposure to bright light during the day
- The end of the day is the best time to take the medication. The patient should avoid bright light during the day and at night. The patient should avoid bright light during the day and at night.
