Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 40 to 50 years of age, who were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes, and included a combination of aerobic and resistance training. The control group consisted of 12 sedentary women who did not participate in the training program. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and EE of the women. The HR at rest decreased significantly from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HR during exercise decreased significantly from 155 to 145 beats per minute. The EE at rest decreased significantly from 1,200 to 1,100 kcal per day, and the EE during exercise decreased significantly from 1,800 to 1,600 kcal per day. These results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness and energy expenditure of sedentary, middle-aged women.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. A government producer (as in a public utility) that is required to supply a certain amount of output will not be able to adjust its output level if its price is too low or too high.
