

that management is a technique, the strategy is the action. The very word is suggested. The development of a strategy is the product of an action upon a field already somewhat given, everywhere representing a "material" phenomenon after having intervened an interpret method. For everything requires that things of these kinds, that every individual development, in the process of which, especially these knowledge systems are, this development requires to give relations that allow action. By the same understanding we provide by understanding the actual arguments presented. These things need always to be said.
