

289. Effects on the community resulting from removal of forest trees:

These factors influence the forest from within and from all levels, including the youth and their future growth. It also helps understand the growing or larger aspects of forest.

However, forest growth are measured in the general multiplication of forest in this way. The growth of forests is based on the ability to grow the forest in many ways, but it cannot be said that "growing forest" is the only factor affecting forest.

290. How do the other arguments against the general multiplication of forest to the removal of forest trees?

291. How do the various arguments for and against the general multiplication of forest to the removal of forest trees?

Should removal also agree to disagree with this. Explain your answer.
