Justice of the Peace and Local Government Review ,1839 The Color of Civics Matthew D. Nelsen,2023 Generations of Americans dating back to the nation s founding have regarded schools as essential for developing the knowledge and civic values necessary for sustaining democracy Yet as Matthew D Nelsen argues in The Color of Civics traditional approaches to civic education are not living up to their promise for many students particularly students of color from disadvantaged communities How do we prepare an increasingly diverse generation of Americans for full participation in public life Drawing on lessons from students and teachers in Chicago The Color of Civics reimagines the democratic purpose of civic education Nelsen's findings challenge some of the most widely cited civic education research arguing that the content of traditional civic education courses privileges the political experiences of white political actors and in turn contributes to divergent political behaviors and participatory outcomes across racial and ethnic groups He presents a new approach to civic education that aims to foster political empowerment by centering historically grounded conversations about current events as well as critical categories of knowledge those that highlight the agency and grassroots political action of marginalized groups This approach increases rates of intended political participation among young people of color and heightens political empathy among white youth Nelsen also highlights the agency of teachers in processes of socialization exploring how their attitudes and lived experiences drive the implementation of more empowering civic learning environments By taking the histories and lived experiences of marginalized communities seriously The Color of Civics asserts that civics courses can become spaces where young people begin to recognize their own agency develop empathy and define the terms of their own political participation Including novel empirical research and an evidence based analysis Nelsen provides practical and useful advice for policymakers that cuts through the noise to focus on what works

Social Studies of Science and Technology: Looking Back, Ahead B. Joerges, H. Nowotny, 2012-12-06 BERNW ARD JOERGES AND HELGA NOWOTNY YET ANOTHER TURN The thing that doesn't fit is the thing that's most interesting Richard Feynman This volume was originally conceived as a contribution to yet another turn not captured by one of the many adjectives that have served to describe the collective meandering of the scholarly community in search of direction It was meant to mark the millennial turn a seemingly purely chronological event but one in search for great meanings and invested with loaded significances The editors wanted to seize the opportunity of the moment in order to pause and reflect on the sociology and history of social studies of science and technology The moment came and went and the new millennium barely nine months later thrust its historical marker upon the world through a horrendous and cruel shock in an unforeseen and unforeseeable way Since then the world appears more vulnerable and volatile fragmented and fraught with uncertainty The universal values as bequeathed by the Enlightenment are either refused or appear refuted The dream of a universal civilization which has accompanied the unfolding of the existing multiple modernities in their historically unique trajectories has been discarded and its promises in tatters

Woldendorp,Hans Keman,I. Budge,2013-04-17 Since the 1980s political scientists have developed a renewed interest in the study of political institutions based on the assumption that institutions matter that is that formal governmental institutions and constitutional legal rules as well as informal institutions like parties and interest groups are crucial determinants of the shape of politics and policy outcomes In this respect the new institutionalism resembles the old institutionalism of pre behaviorist days but the crucial difference between the two is that the new institutionalists are committed to systematic empirical testing of their hypotheses at least in principle In practice however especially in comparative analyses this goal has often been frustrated by the lack of reliable data for a large number of countries Researchers have therefore usually been limited to testing their hypotheses with modest data sets collected for their own particular purposes Of all of the political institutions the executive branch of the government is by far the most important it can be regarded as the irreducible core of government and the principal embodiment of political authority with specific powers that are not lodged elsewhere in the political system Almost all countries in the world and certainly all modern democracies have an executive body called government cabinet or administration as in the term the Clinton administration that has the main responsibility for running the country's public affairs The Law Relating to Local Government in Ireland George Thomas Barrett Vanston,1915 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1878 Knight's Local Government Reports Great Britain.
