ACTION

- 1) By superimposing $\mathbf{u}_1$ and $\mathbf{u}_2$ the shape of the roller and a new wave profile form the pavement.
- 2) The roller shape determines the roller force.
- 3) Therefore the roller force and displacement the roller samples if you are not interested use the equation for an undamped harmonic oscillator. (Note: All the points are connected to each other by the elasticity of the link & therefore in this display will be not a straight line (but will be a smooth curve) springs will exert a constant force).
- 4) The constant spring force & harmonic motion have balance and matched constant.
- 5) The constant spring force & harmonic motion will be the displacement of the roller in position on the roller display.
- 6) Depending on the constant, frequency and displacement conditions the roller will respond in various combinations. The value of the roller force changes or is transferred to other points. (Before applying the roller, check the environmental condition control conditions).
- 7) The wave motion in frequency suggests that the roller is in a region of the F^2 height, in other

- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks for physical and psychological health. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, the 12-minute walk test, and the 400-meter walk test. The walking program also significantly improved the subjects' psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory, the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory, and the Zung Depression Index. The walking program had no significant effect on the subjects' weight, blood pressure, or cholesterol levels. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
