Resources in education ,1991 Learning from Error in Policing Jon Shane,2013-04-16 While the proximate cause of any accident is usually someone's immediate action or omission failure to act there is often a trail of underlying latent conditions that facilitated their error the person has in effect been unwittingly set up for failure by the organization This Brief explores an accident in policing as a framework for examining existing police practices Learning from Error in Policing describes a case of wrongful arrest from the perspective of organizational accident theory which suggests a single unsafe act in this case a wrongful arrest is facilitated by several underlying latent conditions that triggered the event and failed to stop the harm once in motion The analysis demonstrates that the risk of errors committed by omission failing to act were significantly more likely to occur than errors committed by acts of commission By examining this case policy implications and directions for future research are discussed The analysis of this case and the underlying lessons learned from it will have important implications for researchers and practitioners in the policing field Document Retrieval Index ,1972 Police Field Operations Study Guide Davis Publishing Company, Santa Cruz, Calif. Police Women Sandra K. Wells,Betty L. Alt,2005-09-30 It is often said that a woman must do a job twice as well as a man in order to get half the credit This is particularly true of women in law enforcement Women have been involved in various forms of policing for the last 100 years but it wasn't until the Equal Employment Act of 1970 that women could move from the job of meter maids to patrol and detective work Yet less than 1% of all top level cops are women and there remain significant obstacles in the career paths of women in the force This book looks at the history of women police officers and provides first hand accounts of women at every level including those who drop out It addresses discrimination competition lack of mentoring differential treatment and sexual harassment examining what issues play into the decision to stick it out or leave that many policewomen face It also considers the family issues these women return home to at the end of the day It is often said that a woman must do a job twice as well as a man in order to get half the credit This is particularly true of women in law enforcement Women have been involved in various forms of policing for the last 100 years but it wasn't until the Equal Employment Act of 1970 that women could move from the job of meter maids to patrol and detective work Yet less than 1% of all top level cops are women and there remain significant obstacles in the career paths of women in the force This book looks at the history of women police officers and provides first hand accounts of women at every level including those who drop out It addresses discrimination competition lack of mentoring differential treatment and sexual harassment It looks at what plays into the decision to stick it out or leave that many policewomen face It also considers the family issues these women return home to at the end of the day Unlike other treatments of the subject Alt and Wells show how women have changed police work into a more community oriented model of policing reduced police violence served as a strong force to promote a more effective response to domestic violence within police departments and helped with community police relations With a combination of first hand accounts careful research and lively analysis the authors are able to convey the actual experiences of women who have made their careers behind the shield
