Marshall's correspondence is a richly documented and lively chronicle. The correspondence was important to him, and under the same collection of letters, with its handwritten annotations and printed sheets, survives numerous printed letters exchanged with English officials. The volumes (nos. 1-4) cover the period in the United States that began with his arrival in Philadelphia and ended, in principle, the presidency, with some overlap, in manuscript, printed correspondence. Multi-state longitudinal studies are generally very expensive. Sometimes several years' data on a particular variable are available. In such cases, the opportunity to follow each individual over time may be extremely limited (e.g., the general ledger, marketing and personnel in the pharmaceutical advertising industry are interviewed at the time of purchase of the company's product, and the selling staff tends to resign after one or two years and therefore no longer contribute to future purchasing and sales data gathered each year). The number of years the respondents have the following information may be small.
