Home economics Sacha Hepburn,2022-08-16 Domestic service has long been one of the largest forms of urban employment across southern Africa Home economics provides the first comprehensive history of this essential sector in the decades following independence and the end of apartheid Focusing on Lusaka and drawing wider comparisons the book traces how Black workers and employers adapted existing models of domestic service as part of

broader responses to changing gendered employment patterns economic decline and endemic poverty It reveals how kin based domestic service gradually displaced wage labour and how women and girl workers came to dominate kin based and waged domestic service with profound consequences for labour regulation and worker organising Theoretically innovative and empirically rich the book provides essential insights into debates about gender work and urban economies that are critical to understanding southern Africa s post colonial and post apartheid history

East Asia and Food (In)Security Shaun Breslin, Christopher W. Hughes, 2017-10-02 This book presents a study of perceptions of food insecurity in East Asia and explores how individual countries are developing strategies to deal with the situation It also looks at how the perception of food insecurity has increasingly influenced the nature of international interactions not just within East Asia but also in the region s relations with major external actors Many of the challenges facing East Asia are generic food security issues that face people and governments across the world for example the implications of climate change and demographic changes on food supplies This book places the East Asian context in the wider discussion of food in security in global politics However it also identifies potential regional differences for example the significance of rice for the region and the unavoidable impact of China as a major regional player What the Chinese state and Chinese companies decide to do in response to concerns about food insecurity have an impact not just on the rest of the region but on the rest of the world Taking too much of a Sinocentric focus however ignores other actors in East Asia or merely relegates discussion to how they respond to Chinese policies or external strategies This book considers the region as a whole both when it comes to thinking about food security challenges and responses within the region itself and also in the outward projection of regional food insecurity on the rest of the world This book was published as a special issue of The Pacific Review
