Data and Research to Improve the U.S. Food Availability System and Estimates of Food Loss National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Food and Nutrition Board, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, 2015-01-02 The United States Department of Agriculture's USDA's Economic Research Service's ERS Food Availability Data System includes three distinct but related data series on food and nutrient availability for consumption. The data serve as popular proxies for actual consumption at the national level for over 200 commodities e.g. fresh spinach, beef, and eggs. The core Food Availability (FA) data series provides data on the amount of food available per capita for human consumption in the United States with data back to 1909 for many commodities. The Loss Adjusted Food Availability (LAFA) data series is derived from the FA data series by adjusting for food spoilage, plate waste, and other losses to more closely approximate actual intake. The LAFA data provide daily estimates of the per capita availability amounts adjusted for loss e.g. in pounds, ounces, grams, and gallons as appropriate, calories, and food pattern equivalents i.e. servings of the five major food groups: fruit, vegetables, grains, meat, and dairy available for consumption, plus the amounts of added sugars and sweeteners and added fats and oils available for consumption. This fiscal year, as part of its initiative to systematically review all of its major data series, ERS decided to review the FADS data system. One of the goals of this review is to advance the knowledge and understanding of the measurement and technical aspects of the data supporting FADS so the data can be maintained and improved. Data and Research to Improve the U.S. Food Availability System and Estimates of Food Loss is the summary of a workshop convened by the Committee on National Statistics of the National Research Council and the Food and Nutrition Board of the Institute of Medicine to advance knowledge and understanding of the measurement and technical aspects of the data supporting the LAFA data series so that these data series and subsequent food availability and food loss estimates can be maintained and improved. The workshop considered such issues as the effects of termination of selected Census Bureau and USDA data series on estimates for affected food groups and commodities, the potential for using other data sources such as scanner data to improve estimates of food availability, and possible ways to improve the data on food loss at the farm and retail levels and at restaurants. This report considers knowledge gaps, data sources that may be available or could be generated to fill gaps, what can be learned from other countries and international organizations, ways to ensure consistency of treatment of commodities across series, and the most promising opportunities for new data for the various food availability series.

School-based food and nutrition education Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2020-12-10 School-based food and nutrition education (SFNE) helps schoolchildren and the school community to achieve lasting improvements in their food practices and outlooks, build the capacity to change and to adapt to external change, and pass on their learning to others. SFNE has also an important role in complementing efforts that are being made globally to improve food environments and in empowering children and adolescents to become active participants in shaping the food system to be better able to deliver healthy and sustainable diets Despite increasing interest for SFNE the evidence that supports it and its potential much of traditional SFNE particularly in LMICs is largely underfunded not delivering results and disconnected from other key interventions that aim to support the food nutrition environment and education nexus SFNE is under resourced with capacity development opportunities lacking throughout the school system This White Paper is the first document of its kind and it is based on the evidence professional expertise and field experience lessons learned and documented challenges of SFNE work in a variety of contexts It presents the case for raising the profile and transforming the vision and learning model of SFNE This document is directed firstly to a technical audience working in governmental organizations that deal with schoolchildren and adolescents and is also of interest to researchers technical advisors decision makers donors and investors civil society and UN organizations
