Information Security Gregory C. Wilshusen, 2011-04 Historically civilian and national security related info technology IT systems have been governed by different information security policies and guidance Specifically the Office of Management and Budget OMB and the National Institute of Standards and Technology NIST established policies and guidance for civilian non national security systems while other organizations including the Committee on National Security Systems CNSS the DoD and the U S intelligence community have developed policies and guidance for national security systems This report assessed the progress of federal efforts to harmonize policies and guidance for these two types of systems Includes recommendations Illus This is a print on demand publication Information Assurance for Network-Centric Naval Forces National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Naval Studies Board, Committee on Information Assurance for Network-Centric Naval Forces, 2010-04-11 Owing to the expansion of network centric operating concepts across the Department of Defense DOD and the growing threat to information and cybersecurity from lone actors groups of like minded actors nation states and malicious insiders information assurance is an area of significant and growing importance and concern Because of the forward positioning of both the Navy s afloat and the Marine Corps expeditionary forces IA issues for naval forces are exacerbated and are tightly linked to operational success Broad based IA success is viewed by the NRC s Committee on Information Assurance for Network Centric Naval Forces as providing a central underpinning to the DOD s network centric operational concept and the Department of the Navy s DON s FORCENet operational vision Accordingly this report provides a view and analysis of information assurance in the context of naval mission assurance
