- Assignment of up to 3 telephone numbers (MSN) for each analogue connection
- Configurable emergency operation in case of power failure

- Customer-specific design and function adaptation

Description

The Brilink NT1+ is a space-saving 2-in-1 ISDN adapter with an ISDN NT1Q and an adapter (TA - terminal adapter) for connection of analogue devices to a digital network. Through integration of these devices the emergency back-up power capability for suitable analogue telephones is retained even in the case of a power outage, unlike with external terminal adapters.

The end customer is spared from having to connect countless cables, having housings of different colours and designs and having to consult various service providers. The result is greater customer satisfaction and loyalty.

Moreover, the Brilink NT1+ is equipped with supplementary functions (e.g. analogue meter pulse, CUP) not found in considerably more expensive ISDN systems.

The subscriber has an ISDN 50 and two analogue interfaces available and hence can use up to eight ISDN devices and simultaneously use analogue telephones, modems and Group 3 fax machines via the two a/b interfaces.
