

Activity 2.1.1 Wood Frame Systems

Introduction

Wood provides the most versatile natural material for structural systems for medium buildings. Frames are often constructed with a wood frame, especially if the owner has an abundant supply of wood. Much of the United States, however, abundant supplies are scarce. Frame buildings are common. Different heights, materials, structural systems, loads are involved. The materials being used are made of 2x4 to 2x12 studs to allow for different amounts of bracing. Wood frame construction has evolved for many years. It is a well-considered system for medium size buildings and is a structure that should be able to make sense of the placement of the different support points.
