The Nervous System

The nervous system is an extremely complex, highly intricate, and very sensitive structure that regulates everything that happens throughout the human body. The main purpose of all the nervous system and its various parts is to carry and send information, and give the body the signals it needs. The nervous system is basically made of two systems: the central nervous system (CNS) and the peripheral nervous system (PNS).

Central Nervous System

The central nervous system, or CNS, is the part of the nervous system that is located in the brain and spinal cord. It is the most complex part of the nervous system. The brain is the control center of the body, and is located within the protective skull. Layers of meninges and cerebrospinal fluid also protect the CNS. The spinal cord is made of many segments, and is located in the vertebral column. It is the main pathway for the signals that travel up and down the body.

Peripheral Nervous System

There are all parts of the nervous system that are not the CNS, and they make up the peripheral nervous system (PNS). The PNS is made up of all the nerves that are outside of the brain and spinal cord. These nerves are responsible for carrying signals to and from the CNS. The PNS is also responsible for controlling the body's movements and responses.

The PNS is divided into two main parts: the somatic nervous system, which controls the body's movements, and the autonomic nervous system, which controls the body's internal functions. The somatic nervous system is made up of all the nerves that are responsible for controlling the body's movements. The autonomic nervous system is made up of all the nerves that are responsible for controlling the body's internal functions. The autonomic nervous system is further divided into two main parts: the sympathetic nervous system, which is responsible for the body's "fight or flight" response, and the parasympathetic nervous system, which is responsible for the body's "rest and digest" response.

The Brain

The brain is the most complex part of the nervous system. It is made up of billions of neurons and is responsible for controlling the body's movements and responses. The brain is divided into two main parts: the cerebrum, which is responsible for the body's conscious functions, and the cerebellum, which is responsible for the body's unconscious functions. The brain is also responsible for controlling the body's internal functions, such as the heart rate and breathing.
