 (10) Control automatic power relaying so as not to be influenced by noise from the electric equipment.
 (11) In the instrument tray, be affected by external noise, an active filter should be used.
 (12) Shorten the distance between output power supply rails and ground. The shorter the distance between the rails, the more effective for noise reduction.
 (13) Install the noise filter on the power which is directly grounded and minimize the wiring distance between the noise filter and the noise instrument and the instrument power terminals.
 (14) Do not install surge and/or protection on the filter output, signal since this may reduce filter effect.
 (15) Use common mode chokes, which connect with low voltage ground.
