Roadside Design Guide:

Roadside Design Guide American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials. Task Force for Roadside Safety, 2011 The Roadside Design Guide presents a synthesis of current information and operating practices related to roadside safety and is written in dual units metric and U S Customary This book is a guide It is not a standard nor is it a design policy It is intended to use as a resource document from which individual highway agencies can develop standards and policies Although much of the material in the guide can be considered universal in its application several recommendations are subjective in nature and may need modification to fit local conditions However it is important that significant deviations from the guide be based on operational experience and objective analysis The 2011 edition of the AASHTO Roadside Design Guide has been updated to include hardware that has met the evaluation criteria contained in the National Cooperative Highway Research Program NCHRP Report 350 Recommended Procedures for the Safety Performance Evaluation of Highway Features and begins to detail the most current evaluation criteria contained under the Manual for Assessing Safety Hardware 2009 MASH For the most part roadside hardware tested and accepted under older guidelines that are no longer applicable has not been excluded in this edition AASHTO website Roadside Design Guide American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials. Task Force for Roadside Safety, 1989 Roadside Design Guide, 1996-01-01 This document presents a synthesis of current information and operating practices related to roadside safety and is developed in metric units The roadside is defined as that area beyond the traveled way driving lanes and the shoulder if any of the roadway itself The focus of this guide is on safety treatments that minimize the likelihood of serious injuries when a driver runs off the road This guide replaces the 1989 AASHTO Roadside Design Guide A Guide for Achieving Flexibility in Highway Design, 2004 Context sensitive solutions CSS reflect the need to consider highway projects as more than just transportation facilities Depending on how highway projects are integrated into the community they can have far reaching impacts beyond their traffic or transportation function CSS is a comprehensive process that brings stakeholders together in a positive proactive environment to develop projects that not only meet transportation needs but also improve or enhance the community Achieving a flexible context sensitive design solution requires designers to fully understand the reasons behind the processes design values and design procedures that are used This AASHTO Guide shows highway designers how to think flexibly how to recognize the many choices and options they have and how to arrive at the best solution for the particular situation or context It also strives to emphasize that flexible design does not necessarily entail a fundamentally new design process but that it can be integrated into the existing transportation culture This publication represents a major step toward institutionalizing CSS into state transportation departments and other agencies charged with transportation project development Roadside Design Guide, 2011 Roadside Design Guide, 2006 Proposed Guidelines for Fixed Objects in the Roadside Design Guide, 2022 Crash data show that more than 18 000 traffic fatalities per year result from roadway departures and over 7 000 of those roadway departure crashes involved collisions with roadside fixed objects The TRB National Cooperative Highway Research Program s NCHRP Web Only Document 336 Proposed Guidelines for Fixed Objects in the Roadside Design Guide helps develop an evaluation methodology and design guidance for use by engineering practitioners to quantify the relative risk of collisions with roadside fixed objects The document is supplemental to NCHRP Research Report 1016 Design Guidelines for Mitigating Collisions with Trees and Utility Poles Development of Safety Performance-based Guidelines for the Roadside Design Guide Malcolm H. Ray,Christine E. Carrigan,Ethan M. Ray,2022 In 1960 it was observed that approximately 30% to 35% of highway fatalities occur in runoff road collisions a statistic that has remained remarkably constant through the present day The TRB National Cooperative Highway Research Program s NCHRP Research Report 972 Development of Safety Performance Based Guidelines for the Roadside Design Guide provides quantitative safety performance guidance rather than implicit guidance which will more effectively communicate design objectives and performance goals and quantify improvements to safety This change is complementary to the performance based practical design approach being promoted by the U S Federal Highway Administration as well as the ongoing efforts to add performance based design measures to the geometric design process as documented in NCHRP Report 785 Performance Based Analysis of Geometric Design of Highways and Streets Supplemental to the report are four appendices Appendix A Roadside Risk Workbook Appendix B Derivations Appendix C Serious and Fatal Injury Crash Tables and Appendix D Research Needs and Knowledge Gaps Roadside design guide ,1989 Highway Safety Design and Operations Guide, 1997 ,1997 A replacement to the publication entitled Highway design and operational practices related to highway safety also known as The Yellow Book and most recently published in 1974

Highway Noise; a Design Guide for Highway Engineers Bolt, Beranek, and Newman,Bolt, Beranek, and Newman, inc,1971 Various methods of assessing noise loudness and noise annoyance are reviewed and explained sources types and intensities of traffic noise are noted typical means of abatement and attenuation are described design criteria for various land uses ranging from low density to industrial are suggested and compared with the results of previous BBN and British systems for predicting annoyance and complaint and a design guide for predicting traffic noise capable of being programmed for batch and on line computer applications is presented in form suitable for use as a working tool A flow diagram describes the interrelationships of elements in the traffic noise prediction methodology and each element is discussed in detail in the text The text is presented of a tape recording that takes the listener through a series of traffic situations with such variables as traffic distance flow velocity distance outdoors and indoors and presence or absence of absorbers and attenuators

Human Factors Guidelines for Road Systems John L. challenges along CAREC highways This third manual in the series provides practical information about roadside hazard management for CAREC countries It uses a roadside hazard management strategy and the clear zone concept to explain how CAREC road authorities can i identify roadside hazards ii investigate how best to treat those roadside hazards and iii implement effective safety improvements The manual explains the three groups of safety barriers and offers options for safer
