Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group was instructed to maintain their current level of activity, while the exercise group was instructed to perform a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of 30 minutes of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The HR increased from 70 to 75 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The control group showed no significant change in HR or EE. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively increase the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Caution: Spilling, pouring, or collecting water from a Tivvy cooler into the TivvyBall is just fine. But, intentionally submerging the ball (even in a shallow tub of water) will void the warranty. The TivvyBall may not float! It's the top-down pouring technique required in the TivvyBall manual that safely transports your water to the TivvyBall. Submerging the TivvyBall is the worst possible way to use the TivvyBall. It's not worth the risk, and safety, to your car, your water, and your TivvyBall. If you're new, please read the manual. If you're an experienced TivvyBall user, please don't do it. We'll be happy to help you if you need it.
