Poetry on Stage Gianluca Rizzo,2020-08-26 Poetry on Stage focuses on exchanges between the writers of the Italian neo avant garde with the actors directors and playwrights of the Nuovo Teatro The book sheds light on a forgotten chapter of twentieth century Italian literature arguing that the theatre was the ideal incubator for stylistic and linguistic experiments and a means through which authors could establish direct contact with their audience and verify solutions to the practical and theoretical problems raised by their stances in politics and poetics A robust analysis of a number of exemplary texts grounds these issues in the plays and poems produced at the time and connects them with the experimentations subsequently carried out by some of the same artists In depth interviews with four of the most influential figures in the field critic Valentina Valentini actor and director Pippo Di Marca author Giuliano Scabia and the late poet Nanni Balestrini conclude the volume providing invaluable first hand testimony that brings to life the people and controversies discussed Fault Lines Giacomo Parrinello, 2015-05-01 Earth's fractured geology is visible in its fault lines. It is along these lines that earthquakes occur sometimes with disastrous effects. These disturbances can significantly influence urban development as seen in the aftermath of two earthquakes in Messina, Italy, in 1908 and in the Belice Valley, Sicily, in 1968. Following the history of these places before and after their destruction, this book explores plans and developments that preceded the disasters and the urbanism that emerged from the ruins. These stories explore fault lines between rural and urban backwardness and development and before and after, shedding light on the role of environmental forces in the history of human habitats. Migration and the Media Gaoheng Zhang, 2019-08-22 The first book to analyse cultural dynamics of Chinese migration to Italy. Migration and the Media compares Italian Chinese migrant and international media interpretations between 1992 and 2012. From paternalistic tones reducing migrants' motives to poverty or political oppression to fear-mongering diatribes about illegal business practices, tax evasion and unfair competition, the Italian and international media covered this large-scale migration extensively during this period. The Chinese community also joined in the media polyphony with articles in their own newspapers and magazines more likely refuting biased mainstream media coverage or protesting the harsh regulations that seemed to target the Chinese but sometimes even advising fellow migrants on how to counter the media's criticism. Gaoheng Zhang places the strong media interest in Italian Chinese migrant relations within relevant economic, political, cultural and linguistic contexts. Examining how journalists, entrepreneurs and politicians debated Italy's Chinese, Zhang argues that these stakeholders viewed the migration as a particularly effective example to support or dispute Italy's general stance toward migrant integration and economic globalization. Making the Digital City Alessandro Aurigi, 2005 Since the late 1990s, Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) have been hailed as a potentially revolutionary feature of the planning and management of Western cities. Economic regeneration and place promotion strategies have exploited these new technologies; city management has experimented with electronically distributed services and participation in public life and democratic decision-making processes can be made more flexible by the use of ICTs. All of these technological initiatives have often been presented and accessed via an urban front-end information site known as digital city or city network. Illustrated by a range of European case studies, this volume examines the social, political and management issues and potential problems in the establishment of an electronic layer of information and services in cities. The book provides a better understanding of the direction European cities are going towards in the implementation of ICTs. Advances in Design, Music and Arts III Daniel Raposo, João Neves, Ricardo Silva, Luísa Correia Castilho, Rui Dias, 2024-11-17 This book presents cutting-edge methods and findings that are expected to contribute to significant advances in the areas of communication design, fashion design, interior design and product design as well as musicology and other related areas.
