Carroll, 2017-11-06 Once distinct the commercial and alternative black press began to crossover with one another in the 1920s The porous press culture that emerged shifted the political and economic motivations shaping African American journalism It also sparked disputes over radical politics that altered news coverage of some of the most momentous events in African American history Starting in the 1920s Fred Carroll traces how mainstream journalists incorporated coverage of the alternative press s supposedly marginal politics of anti colonialism anti capitalism and black separatism into their publications He follows the narrative into the 1950s when an alternative press re emerged as commercial publishers curbed progressive journalism in the face of Cold War repression Yet as Carroll shows journalists achieved significant editorial independence and continued to do so as national newspapers modernized into the 1960s Alternative writers politics seeped into commercial papers via journalists who wrote for both presses and through professional friendships that ignored political boundaries Compelling and incisive Race News reports the dramatic history of how black press culture evolved in the twentieth century

The New Town Hall Gina M. Masullo, 2020-09-22 Drawing on in depth interviews with a wide variety of people this book answers two questions How and why do we personally engage with elected officials online and offline What influence does this personal political engagement have on our democracy Never before has it been so easy for Americans to make their personal views known to their elected officials Citizens can tweet their opinions to their political representatives or respond to a Facebook post on politicians pages to convey their approval or dislike for policies They can engage politically through virtual town halls or show up in person at a protest easily organized through digital platforms But this mediated relationship also makes it easy for politicians to push back against the opinions of their constituents by deriding their views or even blocking them online The New Town Hall gives readers a firsthand look at personal political experiences through vivid stories from a variety of Americans Researcher and former journalist Gina Masullo documents how Americans feel when they are blocked on social media and demonstrates how political talk with elected officials both online and offline leads to more involved types of political participation such as protests or campaigning for political candidates She contextualizes these personal political experiences with an eye toward understanding how these interactions influence the democratic process
