

LIFE IN SPACE

Living in Space

Astronauts living at the International Space Station have to do all of the regular daily things they would do on Earth. They eat several times a day, use the washroom, sleep, and exercise to stay healthy.

Of course, they are also living in microgravity (seems weightless, almost no gravity) so these tasks aren't as simple as they would be on Earth.

The International Space Station

The International Space Station, or ISS, is a spacecraft that orbits the Earth. It is a collaboration between several international space agencies, and astronauts from all over the world live in it for periods of time.

There is enough room on the craft for six people, plus visitors, and those on board can conduct scientific research in space. Astronauts usually live on the ISS for about six months at a time.

Eating in Space

It's not as easy to go and grab some food for a meal when you live in space on the ISS. Due to microgravity, food has to be specially designed for space so crumbs and liquids are not floating away.

Food on the ISS has to meet certain requirements. It has to be lightweight, nutritious, tasty, wet or sticky (to stop those floating crumbs!), compact, and processed or pasteurized to make sure it will be good for the whole journey.

What's on the Menu?

Some foods can be eaten the same way in space as they are on Earth, such as fruits, vegetables, nuts, dried fruits and meat. Other foods have to be rehydrated before they can be consumed, such as beverages and spinach. When astronauts drink in space, they have to use a special straw and drink right from the packaging.

Meal supplies are planned out so there is enough for three meals a day and one snack. Depending on the astronaut, they get anywhere from 1,900 to 3,200 calories per day.
