Abstract

The present study was conducted to examine the effect of non-verbal communication of teacher on interest and attention of students. Quasi-experimental pre-test post-test design was employed. The sample consisted of 20 pre-service teachers (10 - experimental group and 10 - control group) studying at Dayalbagh Educational Institute, Faculty of Education. The control group was exposed to general pedagogy and the experimental group was exposed to training program on the use of non-verbal communication along with the general pedagogy. A five-point likert type rating scale was used to observe non-verbal communication of pre-service teachers and interest and attention of students. The data of study were obtained by observing 200 lessons of pre-service teachers of duration of 35 minutes each. The observations on rating scale were scored and the obtained data were analyzed using SPSS 16.0. It was found that the difference in interest and attention of students taught by experimental group and control group was statistically significant, favoring experimental group. Statistical analysis also revealed that this variance was explained by non-verbal communication to a significant extent. It was concluded that the appropriate use of non-verbal communication of pre-service teachers has positive influence on interest and attention of students. Thus, the pre-service teachers and in-service teachers should be oriented to appropriate use of non-verbal communication as it helps to catch the attention of students in classroom transaction and to sustain the interest and attention of students.

Introduction

Student is the focus of the system of education. All the initiatives, innovations, and policies are planned for the betterment of student. The effective learning takes place only if the student is engaged in classroom transaction. However, there are instances when student is not attentive in the classroom and does not take interest in the teaching-learning activities. Students' activities in the classroom like peeping outside the window, drawing in the notebook in the class of history, science or other subjects, playing with stationery, talking to classmate about subject other than being taught in classroom, looking out of the classroom, etc. reflect disinterest and lack of attention of students in the classroom transaction. Quite often teachers miss out such students because of some reasons. These students are left unattended and this in the later stages hinders their learning and affects their educational outcome. If students fail to focus their perception and attention within the classroom, basic mental aptitudes essential for developing higher order thinking skills such as problem solving and critical thinking are lacking [1]. It is the prime responsibility of teacher in the classroom to identify such students, catch their attention and sustain their interest throughout classroom transaction. Teachers are identified as a key factor in making learning effective [2]. Teachers are the most influential determiners of students' learning motivation [3]. The influence of the teacher and the learning environment may replace methods and curriculum as the focus of educational research [4].

The communicational abilities of teacher contribute to a large extent to the effective classroom teaching-learning. Classroom communication paves the ways to use communication to facilitate the learning process. Communication is composed of both the verbal and the non-verbal aspects. Research related to non-verbal communication reveals the dominance of non-verbal message over verbal message [5]. It also indicates that very less percent of interpersonal communication involves words, the remainder being made up of voice tone, sounds and a variety of devices such as kinesics, haptics, oculesics, proxemics, paralanguage and chronemics as well as posture, sound symbols and silence, which either replace or accompany words. Hence, when discussing the communication process, both the verbal and non-verbal aspects ought to be looked upon. The basic non-verbal skills include the awareness of eye contact, facial expression, motion, gestures, physical contact and silence [6]. Different gestures and expressions may indicate different meanings.
