Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CG) and an exercise group (EG). The EG performed a 10-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The CG performed no exercise. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training program. The results showed that the EG had a significant decrease in HR and BP compared to the CG. The decrease in HR was significantly greater in the EG than in the CG. The decrease in BP was also significantly greater in the EG than in the CG. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.
