Answer the following questions:

- 1.1 Describe the hydrologic cycle, components, and processes. The hydrologic cycle is a continuous process that moves water around the planet. It is driven by the sun's energy, which causes water to evaporate from the surface of the ocean and land. The water vapor then condenses into clouds, which eventually release the water as precipitation. The water then flows back to the ocean or infiltrates the ground, where it can be stored for a long time before being released back into the cycle.
- 1.2 Define erosion, and the following erosion parts: runoff, channels, meanders, oxbow lakes, and floodplains. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Runoff is the water that flows over the land surface. Channels are the paths that the water flows in. Meanders are the curves in the channels. Oxbow lakes are bodies of water that are cut off from the main channel. Floodplains are the areas of land that are flooded during a flood.
- 1.3 Define drainage basin and divide. A drainage basin is the area of land that drains into a single body of water. A divide is the line that separates two drainage basins.
- 1.4 Define drainage patterns: dendritic, radial, rectangular, and trellis. Dendritic drainage patterns are the most common and are characterized by a main channel with many smaller tributaries. Radial drainage patterns are characterized by channels that radiate out from a central point. Rectangular drainage patterns are characterized by channels that meet at right angles. Trellis drainage patterns are characterized by channels that follow the lines of a grid.
- 1.5 Describe how erosion, transportation, and deposition are affected by grain size and velocity. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Transportation is the process of moving the eroded material. Deposition is the process of dropping the eroded material. Grain size and velocity are important factors that affect all three processes.
- 1.6 Define alluvium. Alluvium is the material that is deposited by a river or stream. It is typically composed of sand, silt, and clay.
- 1.7 Describe how the surface is affected by erosion, transportation, and deposition. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Transportation is the process of moving the eroded material. Deposition is the process of dropping the eroded material. The surface is affected by all three processes.
- 1.8 Define the different types of sedimentation: clastic, organic, and chemical. Clastic sedimentation is the process of depositing clastic material. Organic sedimentation is the process of depositing organic material. Chemical sedimentation is the process of depositing chemical material.
